Magnus Giverin has been employed as a summer intern in Telenor Norway from 17th of June until 16th of August 2024.

Magnus has worked in our Technology division on a project called "Software Development in Telenor" where he attended a team with two other students. The task during the summer internship was, in short, to develop new functionality on one of Telenor Norway's major OSS IT-systems and enrich it with certain new functionality.

Telenor facilitated the summer student internship team's integration into existing development teams, adhering to established development processes. They were assigned independent tasks from the backlog. Their work included developing features enabling Telenor to charge for certain types of incident management, automating specific processes, and creating new algorithms for priority calculation. To implement these features, they utilized technologies such as React, Kotlin, Java, REST, and Kafka. Further on, they were introduced to, and used, the agile working methodology already incorporated in Telenor. They used a variety of technical tools in our CI/CD pipeline.

The summer interns summarized their work in a technical report which culminated with a presentation for Telenor Norway's top level management team (CxO level), as well as an open presentation for all of Telenor Norway employees. The management team was impressed with the presentation and gave positive feedback on the work the students had done during their internship.

Magnus has demonstrated strong ability to quickly understand complex and technically advanced software coding environments. He works hard and determined, and always keeps his focus on the goal. Magnus is easygoing, has a positive attitude, demonstrates good communication skills, and works and thrives very well in teams.

We give Magnus our strongest recommendation and wish him the best of luck in the future. Any potential future employers are welcome to reach out for more detailed references.
